1. In early April 1952, a secret order was issued alerting all Polish ports and all Polish ships in Polish harbors from 30 April to 2 May 1952. All sailors were to be restricted to their ships, except in emergencies when special permission would be granted. The port guard was to be strengthened and furnished with live ammunition, and all controls were to be tightened.

2. Szczecin (Stettin) will, in the future, become the base for the Polish merchant marine and all of its training activities; this means that Szczecin will be the home port for all Polish ships, with the exception of those in the Polish-Chinese Shipping Line. During the summer of 1952, at the completion of the school year, the entire Maritime Fishing School (Technicum Rybolostwa Morskiego), a directing organization concerned with teaching, training, and fishing, will be moved from Gdynia to Szczecin. The reasons for these moves are said to be that Gdynia and the entire Puck Bay will be taken over by the Russians, that the Polish Navy will come under the control of the Soviet Navy in that area, and that the Russians want to restrict observation of their activities in that area.
